With a proven track record of successful projects, I've honed my skills in various languages, including Swift and Objective-C. I am adept at user interface design, with experience in xib/storyboard, in-code, SwiftUI, and iOS-SDKs. I'm familiar with several architectural patterns such as MVC, MVVM, VIPER, CleanSwift, and Yarch. Over the years, I have gained experience in using databases like CoreData, Realm, and SQL, and tools such as Xcode, Profiler, cocoapods, carthage, spm, Git, Jira, Confluence, circle-ci, and fastlane.

My career journey has provided me with diverse experiences, including conducting computer science and programming classes at a university for over 15 years. This experience enriched my understanding of the field and honed my problem-solving skills. In addition, my involvement in hiring processes, screening and interviewing candidates, evaluating their test tasks, and supervising interns in a professional setting has also broadened my skills set.

I have had the privilege to contribute to over 30 projects, some of which are used by millions of users daily. Among them are the "Megafon Personal Account" app for one of Russia's leading mobile operators and the "Tele 2 TV" streaming service.

I take pride in being able to collaborate effectively with backend, design, and tester teams, always ensuring that our end product meets the highest standards of quality. As a constant learner, I remain updated with the latest industry trends and innovations, always looking for new ways to create efficient APIs and architectures.
